May Day Fete To Help Lift Armory Hall Debt

When one little girl.... alone can sell 50 tickets to the big May Day party, it looks like Nevada City is responding in her usual form for the big annual benefit affair, which is being given by Mrs. Lyda Talbot's pupils, sponsored by the Firemen.

Little Betty Rore was the enterprizing lass who sold fifty tickets.

The May Day dance is going to assist very materially in lifting the debt from Armory Hall.

Many of the program dances are meriting mention if reports from the rehearsal means anything. The opening number by the kiddies, most of whom are pre-school age, attired in their studio outfits when they show how they "Bend Low Sister" will bring laughs enough to repay you for coming out.

Five young girls, wearing pastel formals, will do an exhibition waltz, during which they will demonstrate the five dancing positions. They are beautiful in this and the number sends them through the hall and right up to the audience. In an close-up they are even more beautiful.

The committee in charge suggested the high school sell tickets and throw their support to a popular high school girl.

Mrs. Lyda Talbot needs the hearty support of the entire district in her hard work of putting over such a big affair. She gives so cheerfully in many public affairs of her time and beautiful voice and the whole city should give her every assistance in her efforts to assist the firemen.

FAMOUS "GRAD" DONATES BOOKS TO NEV. CITY HI

Mr. David E. Matterson, a graduate of the Nevada City high school with the class of 1887, has recently presented five volumes on various phases of the life of George Washington, to the high school library. The most valuable of these is a volume leather bound and entitled, "George Washington Every day." In this book may be found exerpts of his diary. It is classed as one of the most authentic source books of Washington published. The other four are paper bound and entitled, "High Lights of Presented Writings of George Washington," "Washington Family," "Tribute to George Washington," and a hand-book of the George Washington appreciating course.

Mr. Matterson has been for some time, and is at present, acting historian with the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, with head quarters at the Nation's Capitol. Mr. Sol Bloom director of the commission, has this to say about Mr. Matterson for his work: "Work of such scope and thoroughness has not been attempted before, and is presented as a phase of the literary activity of the commission, with the hope that it will be found interesting and thought provoking as a year book, and valuable as a serious study in colleges and high schools. The career of George Washington is preparatively understood as a contrast of the earlier history of the American Union.

"I can not permit this opportunity to pass without paying just tribute to the value of David A. Matterson's services as a historian of the Historian Commission. Day after day and month after month, he has labored with energy and enthusiasm and his time has been taxed heavily by the insistent demands made upon him. The Commission knows much about his success. Mr. Matterson's distinguished characteristic is loyal devotion."

Following is a letter from Mr. Matterson to Principal H. E. Kjorlie of the high school:

April 6, 1934.

Principal, H. E. Kjorlie,
Nevada City High School,
Nevada City, California.

Dear Sir:

A few years ago I gave myself the pleasure of sending to my old school, two sets of historical wall maps in the production of which I had had a considerable share. With this I am sending you for the school library a copy of my chief work as head of the History Deparment of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, which please accept for the library with my compliments. The book is essentially one for reference but its development of the life and principles of Washington is so thorough that I am in hopes that it may be found useful to the teacher of American history as well as the pupils towards an understanding of the character and position in our national history of this illustrious character.

Yours sincerely,
DAVID M. MATTESON '87
Acting Historian.

FALL, CAUSED BY ROLLER SKATING BOYS, IS FATAL

Gus Orzalli, who received a broken hip March 30, when he was knocked down by two small boys roller skating on Broad street, passed away Tuesday afternoon. He was a little over 75 years of age, and while Dr. A. H. Tickell did everything possible for him, the shock proved fatal.

He was born in Italy, coming to California with his mother and a brother when 12 years of age. After receiving his education he took up mining, teaming and at one time was in charge of the Star Camp for the Eureka Lake and Canal Company above Graniteville. He was an honored and upright citizen.

Mr. Orzalli is survived by two brothers and a sister in Nevada county and several sisters and brothers in Italy.

Holmes Funeral Home had charge of the funeral arrangements yesterday afternoon. The Elks lodge, of which he was a beloved member, conducted the services.

TONOPAH, April 12.—General Manager W. H. Blackburn, was in from Tybo this morning and stated he hopes to have the 300-ton mill in operation by next Monday, April 15. There are no accomodations at Tybo for men with families, yet married workers persist in driving out to the mine, some coming from as far off as California. NUGGET STORY SENDS SON TO INJURED DAD

An hour after the Monday afternoon edition of the Nevada City Nugget was on the street, Martin Ralls, son of Art Ralls, who had been seriously hurt in an automobile accident Sunday, and taken to the Washoe Reno hospital, had phoned the hospital and learned the details of the accident.

The Nugget published the story of the hospital superintendent's urgent message for any relatives that might reside in Nevada county. A friend called young Ralls' attention to the article, and speedy communication with his father resulted.

And again, showing the service the home town newspaper can give its community, last Monday evening the Nugget answered all inquiries on the phone regarding the results of the election. There were only 421 votes cast in the election and the phone rang almost continuously, one inquiry following another, until it really seemed as if every one of those voters had phoned in to see whether his judgment in selecting city councilman had been affirmed by his fellow voters. Of course the Nugget is glad to be of service and will report the the results of other elections as they occur this fall.

COLLEGE BAND GIVES TWO BIG CONCERTS TODAY

The College of the Pacific band consists of 50 pieces and it has won a reputation of being one of the crack collegeate bands of California.

JACKLING RAPS RAYBURN BILL

Destruction of the American corporate way of doing business is the aim of the Fletcher-Rayburn bill, proposing regulation of security exchanges, D. C. Jackling, San Francisco, president of the Utah Copper Company, declared to a daily newspaper of Salt Lake. The bill now is pending before congress.

"This is like scuttling the ship to get rid of the rats," the copper industry leader declared in pointing out that the proposed "regulation of security exchanges is acadamic" when considering that the "primary intent and effect of the so-called stock exchange bill is an attempted destruction of doing business in a corporate form."

Mr. Jackling declared that "natural processes of an economic kind are forcing actual improvements," but that "new and hitherto untried influences" are "muddying the water" and retarding improvements resulting from natural origins. He described the pending copper code as designed to be "helpfull" to copper industry communities and copper industry workers.

NSPECTS COPPER PROPERTIES

Mr. Jackling inspected Utah Copper Company properties at Bingham and Garfield and conferred with D. D. Moffat, vice president and general manager, and other officials. In company with Mrs. Jackling, Mr. Jackling continued his trip to New York, leaving Salt Lake Saturday night. In New York he will attend the annual meeting of the Utah Copper Company April 23.

In discussing the Fletcher-Rayburn bill, Mr. Jackling said:

"This legislation is actually designed to control industry down to

SUPERVISORS TO FORCE BRANION TO SHOW DOWN

....Members of the Nevada County Board of supervisors yesterday attended the meeting of supervisors in Sacramento, at which thirty counties were represented, to protest the action of the State Relief Administrator, R. C. Branion in demanding that counties purchase state relief bonds before any grant of Federal Relief funds is made.

A show down was expected last night when Branion flew to Sacramento to confer with a committee named by the supervisors.

The session was called by Supervisor Frank L. Roohr, of Butte County, a member of the executive committee of the California Supervisors Association, and Charles W. Deterding, Jr., county executive of Sacramento County.

DELEGATES ATTACK PLAN

Branion's policy of demanding that the county borrow state funds was attacked by Deterding, C. E. Steinegul, chairman of the San Joaquin Board of Supervisors; W. O. Russell, chairman of the Yolo board and Tom Hurley of San Diego County.

Deterding declared that the counties, if necessary, should go around the state organization and deal with the federal government directly. He said Sacramento County is opposed to borrowing any money from the state bond issue and declared he believes the $20,000,000 bond issue was passed by misrepresentation. He showed that the state has done nothing for relief, and that the county municipalities and the federal government have been forced to carry the entire burden.

POLICY CONDEMNED

Hurley rapped the state administration's policy of sending in outside directors to administer releif programs. He revealed that in San Diego county a director entirely unfamiliar with county conditions was sent in overnight by the relief administration,.

"We want some man we can depend on" Hurley said, "and although he may entirely honest, we want someone who is familiar with our local conditions. If the supervisors are responsibue for this money, they should have something to say about the administration.

San Diego County has borrowed $373,00 from the state bond issue and has an application pending for $122,000 more. Hurley suggested, however, that if the federal government will not contribute money until the state bond issue is depleted, the counties should join in a borrowing program.

TELLS OF CLOSING CAMP

Supervisor W. A. Collins of Fresno County told how Branion closed an employment camp in Fresno County without notice. The camp was operated by the CWA funds. Collins said the Fresno County officials went over Branion's head to the federal authorities and had the camp reopened.

Steinegul said the San Joaquin County supervisors are cautious about borrowing money and then handing money to someone else to spend.

STEINEGAL'L STATEMENT

"In my judgment if the dictatorial federal relief policy could be overcome," he said, "Branion and the California supervisors could get along all right."

He blamed most of the difficulties on the Federal Government policy. He said he and other members of the San Joaquin board conferred with Branion yesterday regarding relief and that Branion said the counties were not forced to borrow state funds and that the relief administrator declared it is not his desire to enforce the dictatorial policy. San Joaquin County is entitled to $130,000 from the bond issue, the interst charges on whhich for ten years would amount to $58,000.

Russell told of the confusion which resulted in Yolo County when the relief administrator insisted that a trained social worker be sent to administer unemployment cases.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Cassidy have returned from San Francisco after bidding their daughter, bon voyage on her trip to Mexico, where she is to visit friends.

WORK ON P. G E. BIG TUNNEL IS NOW COMPLETED

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company in their annual maintenance work completed retimbering a part of the Big Tunnel, east of Nevada City at 11 o'clock Wednesday evening. There were 45 men employed on the work and it was rushed on account of the increasing demand for water.

New timbers were cut last year, allowed to season, and this year tarred and put into place. Big Tunnel is 3500 feet long.

Water brought through this long tunnel from the streams of the upper country is used for power first and then to supply the Nevada Irrigation Distric, Nevada City, Grass Valley, and communities further west.

It is authoratively reported that there is less snow in the mountains at this time than there has been in 42 years.

ORE EXHIBITS ASKED FOR GOLD MINERS DISPLAY

One of the features of the Foothill Gold Miners show to be staged in Auburn, June 2 and 3, will be a quartz display, samples from many different mines in all districts of the Sierra mining region. The display will be worked into very effective advertising for the mining districts.

The samples gathered will be about the size and shape of an ordinary paper weight and visitors at the show will be invited to select a sample to take home with them. Postel in a conspicious place above each pile of ore will be a short history and description of the mine from which it came, so that paper weight owners will thereafter be able to tell something about it and thus become advertisers for the mining region.

John Robinson, assistant postmaster of Auburn, heads the quartz display committee and states that he is anxious to begin engaging his ore samples. He says that he plans on having from 100 to 200 pounds from as many mines as he can possibly reach and is now sending out calls to all the mining counties from Mariposa to Siskiyou. Robinson will be pleased to hear from the operators on their desire to enter displays.

The Ancho Erie mine, in the Washington district, has had a good winter for steady operation. The shaft is now down 125 feet on the main shoot.

The company has found the faulted vein on which they are working at present with very good results.

Sixteen men are employed with G. H. Meese as superintendent.

MEDICAL SCIENCE NOW HALTS HAY FEVER

Not long ago pedestrians in a downtown street of a certain California city craned their necks to watch an individual who seemed to be conducting some strange performance on the eighteen story balcony of the City Hall.

The performer was a medical worker. He was setting up vaseline-coated plates upon which to catch pollen fram grasses, trees and shrubs blown by the breeze.

His task formed but one small phase of a gigantic task, that of catching "on the fly," classifying and estimating as ta quantity the numerous asmospheric pollens common to this particular city in one year's time. He was one of a vast army enlisted in the war against hay fever.

Since the beginning of civilization men has fought hay fever, but with indifferent success until recent years.

The pollen that blow in from the fields and pastures of ancient Egypt brought hay fever to kings and commoners, rich and poor alike.

It has been estimated that in the United States today 5,000,000 persons suffer from seasonal or perennial hay fever. But there is hope for the millions of today, where there was none for the tribes of early Egypt. The American medical profession has taken the lead in this age-old battle.

Greatest advances have come within the last ten years, one of the most notable being the recognition of food allergy as one cause of hay fever. That is to say, not only the microscopic pollen but the food one eats may bring about the symptoms of hay fever or asthma.

Others develop the symptoms in a household where a dog or cat is kept and one physician reported that relief was obtained for a child simply by doing away with feather pillows.

Diagnosis for pollen sensitively is made possible through skin testing. The modern allergist rubs dry pollen or extracts of pollen into tiny scratches upon the arm, or else injects the extracts into the skin.

A hive-like swelling around the scratches indicates the pollen to which the patient is sensitive.

By this method, when the pollen to which the patient is sesitive is ascertained, hypodermic injections of the extract of this pollen are given in increasing strengths until immunity develops. This treatment is continued through the season in which this particular pollen prevails.

Some hay fever patients have exaggerated symptoms because of their intolerance of certain foods. Men and women employed in factories where cetain dusts are found may develop the symptoms.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lostpeich, of Alleghany, were Nevada City visitors Tuesday.

You're The Loser

WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure.
You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you.
Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?
DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling.
Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively.
Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.
You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for thirty years. No matter what kind of pain I have, they stop it almost instantly. Never without them in the house.
Mrs. Chas. W. Webb, Indio, Calif.

As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. Mrs. Silas D. Keller, Penfield, Pa.
I never found anything that was so good to stop pain as Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. I have told many about them and I find they are all using them. Mrs. Martha Lacy, Davenport, Iowa
I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for years. I keep them on hand all the time. I can certainly recommend them for pain. Miss Audra Seybold, 2417 W. 2nd St., Dayton, Ohio
Your Anti-Pain Pills have been a wonderful help to me. I have used them for three years and always keep them on hand. Mrs. E. Pierce, Lapwai, Idaho
I have used quite a lot of Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. They are fine pills to stop pain. Mrs. J. L. Kester, Shickshinny, Pa.

TEN STAMP MILL OPERATING AT ZEIBRIGHT MINE

Ten stamps are dropping steadily on commercial gold ore at the Zeibright mine in the Bear River section, east of Nevada City. Late developments have uncovered continuations of the ledges into new ground. Prospecting and development of territory adjacent to the productive belt is being carried on through several long tunnels.

There are large reserves of ore in the old workings that were formerly too low grade to mine and they can now be worked at a profit.

The Zeibright mine is operated by the Newmont Mining Corporation.

Frank Clark, mining engineer, and party motored to Georgetown Monday. He said there was considerable mining activity in that district and that the old Beebe mine was picking up in mine operations.

FRENCH CORRAL MINING NOTES

Mining progress in the French Corral district is showing home pick-up after several months of quiet.

The French Corral mine has just about finished installing their last unit of machinery and then they will be ready to start operations.

Mrs. M. L. Langley, of Nevada City, who has a lease on the Esperence mine, stated recently that she had sold her lease on the property and that actual work would start snortly.

Eighteen men are now employed at the North San Juan mine, four being added in the last few days. The vein is showing up strong and shows excellent values.

Water is too high on the Yuba River at present for many snipers to work. The water raised 12 feet in the river during the last storm and then receded. From all indications water may be low this season and many snipers will resort to the dry washers. In anticipation of this happening, a number of the dry washers have been built.

IDAHO MARYLAND EMPLOYS 350

The Idaho-Maryland mines company now has 340 men employed and expect to have work for 50 more in the next few months.

Errol MacBoyle, manager and one of the principal stockholders, has planned to use the increased value in the price of gold in employing more men and in development work.

All work in the mine is progressing satisfactorily. The tailings plant will be ready for operation about the first of May. Stations are geing cut at the 130 level in the New Brunsdwick shaft and at the 1250 level in the old Brunswick shaft.

Will McKenny, of North Bloomfield, returned recently from a tour of Nevada state mining camps. He found conditions much the same there as in the mining camps here, no money for mining and many trying to secure mining ground with no money with which to handle the properties.

Mrs. Earl Raymond, noted musician and harpist, of Grass Valley, was a Nevada City visitor Wednesday.

MURCHIE WORKS ON NEW SHAFT

The Murchie mine is crosscutting at the 1600 foot level through the hanging wall of the big blue vein in an easterly direction. They plan to sink to the 2,000 foot level and then raise vertically to the surface coming out in close proximity to the present mill.

The Murchie incline shaft is handling practically all the ore it can possibly carry at present, which averages 250 tons per day and the new vertical shaft will facilitate the handling of a great deal more ore.

The Independence shaft, which is now used mainly to lower steel and timbers, is to be sunk 800 feet, it is reported. This shaft will then be used to hoist ore.

It is reported the Murchie Mining Company has purchased the A. J. Edminister and Charles Genasci properties in the Willow Valley district.

U. C. PROVOST URGES BETTER H. S. WORK

FRESNO, April 2.—In a plea for continued development of the cooperative spirit between high schools of California and the State University, Dr. Monroe E. Deutsch, vice-president and provost of the University of California, told the Association of California Secondary School Principals that the units of the public school system must either hang together or hang separately.

Dr. Deutsch pointed out that even though the number of high school graduates who continue their education at a university is but a small percentage of the secondary school enrollment, proper training of them is a matter of supreme importance, necessitating the utmost in cooperation between high school and university authorities. He said in part:

SCHOOLS RESPONSIBLE TO STUDENTS

"It must always be remembered by us both, that neither high school nor universities exists for its own sake or for the sake of its faculty, but primarily for the students whom the state expects each of us to educate. Each of us must attempt to see education as a whole—not merely the elementary school, the junior high school, the senior high school, the junior college, the college or the university—but the whole sweep of it, and need be, surrender prejudices and theories for the good of the whole.

"While the University enrollment is obviously but a small part of the enrollment in the 384 high schools, it is greater than the enrollment of all private universities and colleges in the state put together, and furthermore, mere number is not a measure of importance. We are asked to furnish the state teacherh, professors, scholars, physicians, dentists pharmacists, lawyers, business executives, social service workers. ooptometrists, nurses, public health officials, public administrators and others. Think for a moment of what our failure in any one of these fields would mean to us all and to the state.

DANGERS OF INCOMPETANCE

An incompetent physician might permit a trifling ailment to become a menace to your life or that of one close and dear to you. A badly trained lawyer might jeopardize your property or even more. A badly trained engineer might in numerous obvious ways endanger the lives of yourself and your family. Need I emphasize to you the importance of well-trained teachers?"

As a concluding remark, Dr. Deutch said of the University, "we are an institution which welcomes all who give promise of being able to profit by our instruction. And we are proving that an institution can be thus democratic and yet maintain the quality of its instruction."

RUBY MINE HITS SPECIMEN ORE

C. L. Best and wife, of San Jose, passed through Nevada City recently enroute home after a visit at the Ruby mine, between Downieville and Alleghany. They are interested in the Ruby and displayed some beautiful specimens of ore.

The new tunnel is now in about 40 feet and they have just run into an ore body they had encountered several years ago. The ore is proving very rich and runs several thousand dollars a ton.

Preparations are now being made to sink on a quartz vein that shows splendid values. Twelve men are now employed at the Ruby mine.

Mr. Best is one of the firm of the Best-Holt Tractor Company, in the bay region.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Tom Davies, the new supervisor in the Alleghany district of Sierra county, is loosing no time in getting the roads under his care in first class condition. This is especially true of the Ridge road where a grading gang is at present working. About ten miles has already been put into shape for the summer travel.

Now That Spring Is Here

Now that spring is here, and summer is just around the corner, the minds of millions are occupied with plans for vacation.

This is an unusual year for the traveler. The mysterious exigencies of international exchange have made tremendous changes so far as paying for one's wanderlust is concerned. The current rate of exchange with most European currencies, for example, is much less favorable than it was a year ago. That American dollar which used to be so potent has literally shrunk in size. A hundred and fifty or two hundred of them are needed to do the work that a hundred used to do.

The result is that where travelers used to first think of Europe, they are now looking elsewhere. They're going either to countries where the money rate is favorable—or they are going to follow the old adage and really see America.

Seeing America is an especially excellent idea. It's a big country—and very few of it's citizens have more than a cursory acquaintance with it. Take, for instance, Alaska, which is attracting a steadily increasing number of people who want a real vacation at a moderate cost. Most of us think of it in terms of ice—not knowing that certain sections produce giant strawberries and flowers. We think of the Arctic Circle as being as far away as the north pole—yet a little way south of it, at Fairbanks there is a first-class school of mines and an agricultural college. We think of the seas bordering it as being perpetually torn with storms—and the fact is that sailing to Alaska is almost always calm—with dancing on deck in warm evenings.

Yes, it's a fine year to look over your own home—the United States. And you'll find a satisfaction in knowing that the money you spend will go to American workmen and industries—and help us toward recovery.

Money In A Nutshell

Suppose you own a thousand houses you wish to sell. Suppose that the standard of value in your locality is wheat—and that you will trade a house for 1000 bushels of it.

Then suppose that there are a thousand persons who wish your houses—but only a hundred of them have any wheat. You'll sell a hundred houses, have nine hundred left on your hands—and nine hundred people who would like to buy them have to go without, because they lack the accepted medium of exchange.

Finally, suppose that it is discovered that these nine hundred people possess quantities of barley. This barley is likewise given a value, in relation to the value of wheat, and the result is that you sell your houses and people obtain lodging.

There is the money problem in a nutshell. One reason why international trade is languishing is that millions of people who would like to buy from other countries, are unable to because they lack the present medium of exchange—gold. They live in silver standard countries—and the present low price of silver, as related to gold, has cut their purchasing power to a fraction of former levels.

The move to remonetize silver, consequently, is simply a move to put buying power into hands which now lack it—and thus send new blood through the sluggish veins of world commerce.

FUNERAL HELD FOR THE LATE FRANK MURPHY

Frank Murphy, who failed to rally from the effects of pneumonia suffered some time ago, passed away Monday afternoon.

He was born in Grass Valley in 1871 and spent his entire life in Nevada county. He lived for many years on his ranch home on Montezuma Hill, north of Nevada City. Mr. Murphy was a kindly, sincere man, greatly loved by all who knew him.

About three weeks ago a fire burned his home, an early day landmark. In his last illness he begged to go home, but the news of the fire was never told him. His sister, Mrs. Provis and brother were here and with him almost constantly in his last illness.

Surviving him are the sister, Mrs. Provis, of San Francisco, three brothers, John and George, of San Francisco, and Albert, of Montezuma Hill.

Holmes Funeral Home had charge of the services. Burial was made yesterday afternoon from St. Canices Catholic church, with interment being made in the Catholic cemetery, in Grass Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Bettcher spent Sunday in Alta with friends.

Harry Morris superintendent of the Maybert Mining Company, on the South Yuba, is in the bay region recovering from a severe attack of rheumatism from last accounts. Only a few men are now working at the mine.

COMPANIONSHIP

We played in every stately room
Of that old house long, long ago,
The joyous games of make believe
That only little children know.
King Winter ruled the world outside,
The snow lay deep on field and lane;
And fairy pictures, etched with care
Adorned each frosted window pane.

Sometimes the sun slipped through the clouds,
Then muffled up from head to toe,
We skated on the ice-bound stream
With flying curls and cheeks aglow.
There were verandas long and wide
Where merry hours flew swiftly by,
And snow men that our hands had made
Stared blandly at the wintry sky.

But evening brought the happiest times;
On paneled walls the soft lights gleamed,
And there before the open fire
Three little children sat and dreamed.
There daddy told them wonderouos tales
Of California's sun and flowers,
And winter coming to the land
With gifts of cool, life giving showers.

At length from one low shelf we brought
The books that were our our joy and pride.
And asking oft, "what does this mean?"
We read them there by daddy's side.
And in those hours before the fire,
While shadows veiled familiar nooks,
He taught us how to love and prize
The rare companionship of books.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND

Director, Physical and Health Education New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Returning To School

Recently I emphasized the importance of keeping a child home from school when some sign or symptom, no matter how insignificant, appears to indicate a change of health. Now I want to stress the danger of permitting a child to return to school too soon after illness.

Not only is there danger to the child because of his weakened condition, but it may be that he is still capable of transmitting the disease. Your family physician should be your guide, since the periods of communicability are known for most diseases. These periods should be upheld to the limit.

It is not good sportsmanship to run the chance of your child being the cause of transmitting disease to others. Of course, we know that nursing a child to recovery is often a trying experience for the mother. And when the child is allowed to leave the sick bed, the temptation to send him back to school is very great. Nevertheless, it is not fair to the child, nor to the teacher, and it may be unfair to the other children at school.

Next week Dr. Ireland will write about "spring fever."

SACRAMENTO

Mining and stopping of ore is continuing at the Spanish mine, north of Washington, with three shifts in the mill and one a day shift in the mine. The ore is being mined in the upper camp and is brought to the mill over the two mile tramway.

W. E. Moulton, of French Corral, accompanied by Mrs. Kate Sullivan and Miss Nelly Sullivan, were Nevada City visitors Wednesday. Mr. Moulton said they were still harvesting hay in their district. Orange trees are in blossom and with spring flowers make the air sweet with perfume.

Mesdames Alice Davies and Helen Berger of Evangeline Chapter and Rosetta Johns, of Aurora Chapter, O. E. S., motored to Sacramento Saturday and attended a luncheon at the Eastern Star temple. The occasion was a gathering of the Rita Loi Association of Associate Conductresses of Northern California.

Mr. E. Jacobs, of the Boston Merchantile company, of Nevada City, was a Sacramento visitor yesterday.

LLOYD ABBOTT NAMED COUNTY DISTRIBUTOR FREDERICKSBURG BEER

The Fredericksburg Brewing Company in this issue of the Nugget, announces the appointment of Lloyd "Porky" Abbott, as distributor for Nevada county with headquarters, in a new building opposite the Valley hotel, Mill street, Grass Valley.

E. H. Van, head of the Sacramento territory of the company is assisting Mr. Abbott for a few days in establishing the new agency.

A big White aluminum painted truck, modern in every respect, fitted with refrigerator compartments for both bottled and draft beer, will give quick and satisfactory service to all retail establishments. This is the only truck of this character north of Sacramento.

Mr. Van states that the Fredericksburg company is soon to erect a big bottle works in Sacramento, to cost approximately $100,000.

Louis Baumgartner, for thirty years affiliated with the Fredericksburg company, it is announced, is now brewmaster.

LOCAL OPTION IS GOAL OF DRIVE IN SOU. CALIF.

GLENDALE, April 12.—A campaign to secure within ten days, 50,000 of the necessary 111,000 signatures to a petition to restore local option in California has been launched by the American Temperance Federation of Glendale.

Petitions are ready for circulation and signatures today, according to E. E. Covert, state organizer of the American Temperance Federation.

The initiative petitions ask for an amendment to Article 20, of the State Constitution by the addition of Section 23 which provides: "Upon initiative petition, the legislative body of any county or city shall submit to the electors thereof, or to the electors of one or more precincts, the question of prohibiting the liquor traffic therein."

The petitions ask for a local option law, which will make it unlawful to manufacture, sell, offer for sale, transport, or possess intoxicating liquors in the sections which vote dry.

Copies of the petition may be obtained from the American Temperance Federation, 211 East Broadway, Glendale, according to Mr. Covert, who was reappointed chairman of the temperance committee of the Federated Church Brotherhoods of California at their State Convention this week, at which time the enthusiastic support of the Brotherhood was pledged the Federation.

Louis Curtoni, of Grass Vallley, is the complaining witness against Pielentz and Lee.

Alvin Richards, bond salesman, of Berkeley, is in Nevada City visiting his brother, Thomas Richards.

Mrs. Clarence Shurtleff, of Gold Flat, has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs .Sue Anderson, of Oakland, and brother, R. N. Smith, of San Francisco.

ALASKA JUNEAU NETS $1 A SHARE

JUNEAU, ALASKA, April 12.—Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Company reports profit of $1,497,253 for 1933 after depreciation, federal taxes and other charges but before depletion. This was equivalent to $1 a share on the capital stock and compares with $820,370 or 57c a share in 1932.

The company last year recovered 158,966 fine ounces of gold from 2,466,832 tons of ore against 151,578 ounces from 2,414,469 tons the year before.

Reporting a new policy in regard to purchase and sale of its stock in the open market, the company said that last July it sold at a substantial profit all shares owned for speculative purposes and in the future would buy its own stock onoly for retirement. In accordance with this policy, 8300 shares have already been bought, President P. R. Bradley said.

Mrs. Willoughby Is Dinner Hostess

Mrs. Elsie Willoughby entertained a group of friends at dinner Tuesday night. Following the dinner two table of cards, one of auction and one of contract bridge, were enjoyed. The guests were I. L. Putnam, of Marysville, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando McCraney, Mr. and Mrs. Harley M. Leete, and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Osborne, of Grass Valley.

Pointing out that stock exchanges are essential to the distribution and exchange of securities in the same way that banks are essential for the exchange of money and credit, Mr. Jackling declared the legislation "would place control of all business and business practices in a politically-appointed bureau, without knowledge of business and with its sole objective political aggrandizement and perpetuation in office."

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington.—Congress is showing every sign of wanting to be good boys and girls and play ball with President Roosevelt. It appeared when congress decided to slap the President in the face by overriding his veto of the veterans' compensation and government employees' salary question, that at last there was a definite and far-reaching breach. Many persons here thought the President had a recalcitrant bunch on his hands and that there would be plenty of trouble during the rest of the session. Such is not the case, however, and, although there will be differences arising, the remainder of the session will show few cases in which the wishes of the President will be absolutely disregarded.

Now Ready to Be Good

The reason for this sudden change is simple. An election campaign confronts all of the members of the house and 35 members of the senate. As the thing has been explained to me by numerous representatives and senators, they were in a political situation where they felt they would rather slap the President than the veterans. The President can scold or spank them, it is explained, but the veterans have votes that are a good deal rougher than a spanking by the Chief Executive, from the standpoint of politics. Now that the potential candidates can go before the veterans of their respective districts and point with pride or something to a vote to restore the compensation, the campaigning members feel they are sitting in a good seat. They are ready to be good.

I am told that Democratic leaders in the house and senate have had innumerable visits since the vet vote from members of their party who wanted to assure the administration that they are "regular" again and will stay that way. Having obtained what they thought they had to have to insure their re-election, they will now vote according to direction once more. Then, when they start speech-making in their home bailiwick, they will talk loudly and long about supporting the President in one speech and in the next, if it be in a strongly organized veterans' area, they will shout about their friendship for the former soldiers, sailors and marines. From which it ought to be apparent that the whole thing was just a part of the great game of politics.

Just Playing Politics

Democratic bolters could not have overridden the President by themselves, and that fact gave the Republicans an opportunity to play politics as well. The Republicans in the house and senate saw a chance to embarrass the President. They nudged the Democrats from every angle to override the veto and joined with the bolters on the vote just because it would put the Democratic leaders on a hot spot and would be offensive to the President. That is the way the game of politics is played. If one looks back over the records during the Coolidge and Hoover administrations, plenty of instances are shown where the Democrats, then in the minority, joined the bolting Republicans and so-called progressives in votes that were embarrassing to the President.

As a matter of fact, there still is some doubt in the minds of many observers here whether Mr. Roosevelt had sound reason for his veto. He charged that the bill, as passed before the veto, would add $228,000,000 to the regular budget of the government. That is true. But I cannot help recalling that there are two budgets, now. One of them is the regular budget and the other, many time larger, is for emergency expenditures. At least some of those Democrats, who broke with the President on the question, are asking why the government has to cut down on its regular budget while it expands and "throws money away like water" from the emergency budget. It does cause one to pause and think about it.

In other words, the thought of those men is: why is it such a crime to spend about one-fourth of a billion dollars the way congressmen want to spend it when the administration is spending some five or six billions the way it wants to spend that tremendous sum.

Further, I cannot help recalling that, when the economy act was passed during the extra session last spring, I reported to you that the curtailment of expenditures for veterans and for several other purposes under the regular budget, was to be short-lived. I said at that time that it would be given back in pieces. Two acts of congress since have restored a total of 75 per cent of the amount taken away from the veterans, and the last act of congress restored one-third of 15 per cent pay cut to the government workers and will give them another one-third beginning July 1.

More Trouble Brewing

There is trouble brewing for President Roosevelt in another political direction. It is not a direct result of the overriding of his veto. That fact does appear to have accentuated the difficulties, however, according to most of my informants. The question that is before the administration and leaders of the Democratic party is: what is the attitude to be toward the progressives and other insurgents. It is known, of course, that there are members of the house and senate, elected as Democrats, who have no more right to call themselves Democrats than somes of the radical group of the minority can claim to be Republicans. They are insurgents. There is no other proper label. They have not, do not and will not stand hitched to any program for any great length of time.

President Roosevelt and "Big Jim" Farley know full well that the Democrats must have the help of the so-called progressives and the radicals in some parts of the country. This is especially true in the Middle West. But the administration cannot turn against the militant and fighting young Democrats who have fallen into line solidly behind Roosevelt and the New Deal. If it snubs them, "it scorns the steps by which it did ascend" and that is never good politics. The younger group of Democrats take credit for the smashing victory of 1932 and Mr. Roosevelt cannot ignore their clamoring for recognition.

Like a ghostly shadow across the path, however, floats the forms and faces of numerous powerful men who broke away from Hoover and supported the Roosevelt candidacy. The Roosevelt blessing already has been bestowed upon Senator Hiram Johnson, a Californian, who was elected as a Republican but who supported Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy. Senator Johnson is up for election this year. On the other hand, there is young Bob La Follette, of Wisconsin. Surely, he was a liberal all the way. He supported Mr. Roosevelt as against Mr. Hoover. But Young Bob has had no such blessing from the administration. Indeed, "Big Jim" Farley has strongly intimated that he wants to see Wisconsin elect Charles Broughten, a regular Democrat. And so it goes.

Wolman Not Real Neutral

When President Roosevelt announced settlement of the labor controversy between the automobile industry and the American Federation of Labor, and proposed creation of a board to adjudicate the questions, every one here thought naturally enough that he would select a representative of the industry and one of labor, with the third man being neutral. The natural conclusion was that the third member of the board would have no ties with either capital or labor. There was much surprise, therefore, when he named Dr. Leo Wolman, of Columbia university, New York, as the neutral member. From what I can gather around Washington, the appointment of Doctor Wolman was a bit disappointing to those who wanted a real neutral to sit as a member of the board. Frankly, the President did not meet legitimate expectations in the Wolman appointment, except, of course, among those who sympathized wholly with labor's contention in the controversy.

Doctor Wolman's knowledge of labor questions cannot be denied. He has demonstrated his ability and his capacity to understand the problems. The objection that I hear, however, does not run to that phase of his ability. Doctor Wolman has been associated directly or indirectly with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, for many years. However he may desire to be impartial, however basically honest he is, the thought in many places in Washington is that Doctor Wolman cannot be neutral as that word is accepted by the general public. He is human and he has sentiment. Those two factors make it appear to many observers that the settlement of the automobile-labor controversy amounts to nothing more than a postponement. It will flare up again, but probably will not take place until after the middle of June when the President will not have a law in effect that will permit him to license the industry.

The week's best laugh: Federal Home Loan board regulations require that applicants for loans submit with their applications, first, a "close up" photograph of the property and, second, a "street scene" that will show a little of adjoining property. These photographs have the purpose and the value, of course, of providing a general knowledge of where the money goes.

But the headquarters office of the loan system was not quite prepared for two photographs which it received in connection with one application that came from a colored man in a little southern town. In complying with the requirement that a "close up" photograph be submitted, the applicant overlooked the fact that it was of the property and sent in a picture of himself, a photograph that disclosed the wrinkles and gray hair of his age as well as two exceptionally large eyes. For the street scene, the applicant had himself photographed in his best bib and tucker, namely, his lodge uniform. And he was riding a bicycle along the street.

Last Word in Bridal Veilcraft

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS TO lovely and chic bridal array for the late spring and the summer bride, fashion is positively lavish in offering suggestions which are entirely new and novel.

Pretty as a wedding dress may be, it is, after all, the veiling of the bride, together with the various little accessory items of adornment, which make or mar the picture. The wealth of ideas offered in both veils and headdress and accompanying fantasies is positively thrilling this season.

Time was when the bride-to-be bought yards and yards of tulle, depending on the magic touch of some good fairy who would appear at the last moment to adjust the veil to a point of enchantment. Of course this entailed endless worry and suspense and more times than not ended in keen disappointment.

However, in this present day of efficiency all this uncertainty as to the final touch to the veil has been done away with and a new order of procedure takes its place. The modern bride-to-be goes to the leading millinery department or her favorite shop and asks to be shown the latest and most fetching in bridal adornment. The visions of loveliness which the salespeople will bring forth are enough to make the eyes of any prospective bride dance with joy. Think of it—the entire ensemble all thought out for you down to the last orange blossom bud.

One of the first items of news which will be imparted to the enquiring bride-to-be is that streamline effects are the last word in wedding veilcraft. Which means that there is going to be a symmetry, a very poetry of motion about the billowy masses of tulle which veil the springtime bride which will delight and satisfy all who behold. You see the idea conveyed in the exquisite lace-trimmed veil to the left in the picture—a model which is now showing in the better millinery establishments. Note that the veil is supported at the top of the close-fitting cap of Chantilly lace in coronet or tiara effect. Of course you have noted the huge lace rosettes, one at each side, which seem to have fluttered down into position on the sweeping wide veil. They bring a message of real news in regard to bridal veil styling for spring-summer, 1934.

And her flower muff! Flower muffs are the correct thing for the modern bride to carry. What's more, the bride's attendants will be carrying them, too, but in fresh springy colors which no word describes so perfectly as "delicious."

Here's something those seeking style hints should know. It is about cunning little flanged molded-to-shape face veils which brides are wearing—ever so flattering! Then, too, it is interesting to note that bridesmaids' hats are sporting tremendously wide brims of maline. These in a galaxy of springtime colorings are wonderfully picturesque and becoming. In some instances the bride's attendants are carrying quaint colonial bouquets with wide ruffles of maline encircling the prim cluster of wee flowerets, the maline matching the wide maline brim of each hat.

And now this recital of lovely bridal fantasies must be brought to an end but not until we call attention to the resplendent Spanish lace veil on the bride pictured to the right. It is done in true Spanish mantilla effect.

LACE REAPPEARING IN VARIOUS HUES

You just can't keep a good fashion down. With spring dance frocks growing more feminine and alluring by the minute, lace was certain to stage a reappearance, after having been more or less out of the picture for winter.

A black frock, in one of the new cire or cord laces, is just about the most satisfactory evening frock that anyone can own. And a white lace dress, worn with bright colored slippers and accessories, is a fetching youthful fashion.

This spring, however, there is unusual emphasis on colored laces. French women are choosing navy blue lace over satin or taffeta slips, in place of black. Green lace, in lovely leafy shades, makes enchanting evening dresses. One very effective model is made with a trained skirt, fitted around the hips, and with soft fullness at the hemline. The bodice is made with a hip-length peplum, divided in front and shirred at the back to match the fullness in the back of the skirt.

Definite Leaning Toward Swagger Suits Observed

No one is going to put the American girl in uniform this spring. . . . Suits are as varied as the weather, which gives room for practically a daily design.

There is a definite leaning toward the swagger suit, no doubt due to all this windblown talk which is effective . . . if it does sound a little chilly.

These swaggers come in practically full length coats, frequently tied under the neck, but in bows, not ascots. The coats have the full sleeve, hang loosely and are not made to be wrapped around. Skirts have wide self-cloth belts and often the button which marks the belt closing is repeated on the blouse.

Sequin Stoles Appear

Long straight stole scarfs of sequins or lame are draped about the shoulders as an accompaniment to frocks of the same fabric.

WITH BOLERO

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A woman who keeps pace with the times cannot get by without at least one long-sleeved, floor-length dress which sets her apart from the daytime world of practical clothes, and stamps her as a lady of the new leisure. This gown of all-day crepe, the new rayon woven of tubize yarn acetate and tubize viscose yarn is in a new shade called orange bisque. Its simple flowing lines make it a dress of graceful and becoming dignity. Outstanding style points to remember include the bolero effect and the deep armhole sleeves, also the girdle-tie of self fabric.

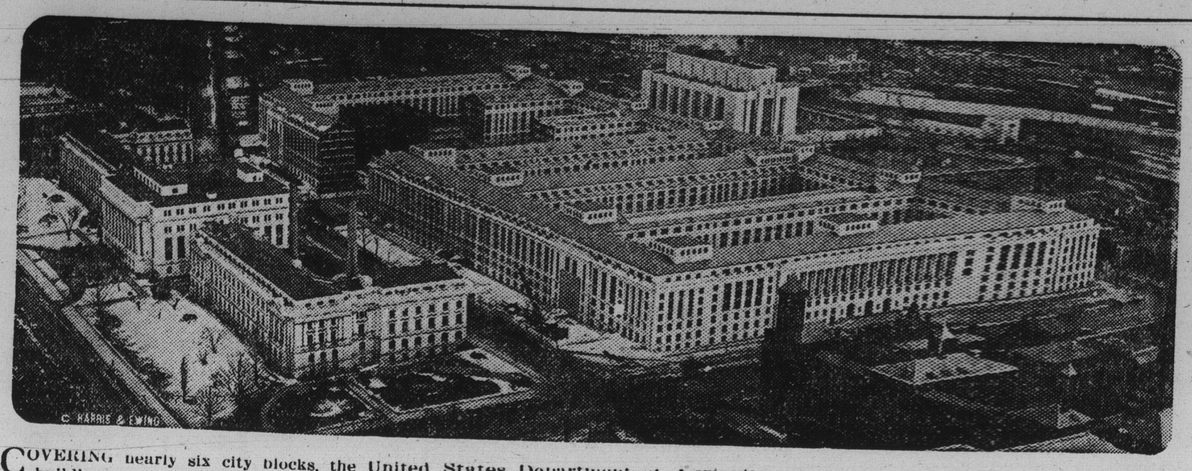
Agriculture Department Uses Lots of Space



COVERING nearly six city blocks, the United States Department of Agriculture buildings are the largest group of buildings to house government activities in Washington. This photograph, taken from the Washington monument, shows the administration building (left) where Secretary Wallace and his assistants have their offices, while on the right are the extensible buildings where the many agriculture laboratories are located. The activities of the Agricultural administration are also handled from this building.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE TENDER HEART OF FARMER BROWN'S BOY

WHEN Nimble Heels the Jumping Mouse so unexpectedly jumped up inside the trousers' leg of Farmer Brown's boy he probably was more frightened than Farmer Brown's boy himself, and that is saying considerable. You see, for a minute or two Farmer Brown's boy didn't have the least idea whose sharp little claws those were clinging to his leg. He simply knew that there was something alive on his knee and his first thought was of a Snake. Farmer Brown's boy does not like Snakes. If he had done any real thinking he would have known that it couldn't be a Snake, for a Snake would have felt very different.

But Farmer Brown's boy acted first and thought afterwards. In times of real danger this often is the best way of doing. In times of imaginary danger it is often the other way around. Almost without knowing that he was doing it, Farmer Brown's boy brought his hand down heavily at the point where he felt those sharp little claws. Under his hand he felt a soft little body.

"Oh!" cried Farmer Brown's boy. "I'm afraid that that was Danny Meadow Mouse and that I've killed him."

Farmer Brown's boy sat down in the grass, and with his free hand carefully rolled up his trousers' leg until he could take hold of little Nimble Heels. As he drew out the dainty little brown-coated fellow Farmer Brown's boy gave a little whistle of surprise. He had expected to see blunt-headed, stubby-tailed, stout-bodied Danny Meadow Mouse. And here in his hand was the slimmest, trimmest little mouse he ever had seen. And such a tail! He whistled again when he saw the length of that slim, tapering tail. Never before had Farmer Brown's boy seen a Jumping Mouse.

Poor little Nimble Heels lay quite still in Farmer Brown's boy's hands. You see, that had been a very hard blow that Farmer Brown's boy had struck in his surprise. Instantly a look of pity and sorrow swept over the face of Farmer Brown's boy. "You poor little fellow! I'm afraid I have killed you and I wouldn't have done that for the world," he cried.

There were tears in the eyes of Farmer Brown's boy, as he stroked the soft little body with one finger. A leg moved and then kicked feebly. Into the eyes of Farmer Brown's boy crept a look of hope. Without stopping to turn down the leg of his trousers, Farmer Brown's boy started for the Smiling Pool as fast as he could run. When he got there he dipped a little water up in the hollow of his hand and sprinkled Nimble Heels. Nimble Heels gasped a little and Farmer Brown's boy put a drop or two of water in his mouth. Nimble Heels opened his eyes. You see, he hadn't been dead after all, but he might have died if Farmer Brown's boy hadn't tried to bring him back to life.

"I'm so sorry," murmured Farmer Brown's boy as he stroked the little brown Mouse. "I'm so sorry. I guess now I'd better take you home so as to be sure you quite recover." And so it was that Nimble Heels began a long journey.

CHOICE THINGS TO EAT

A QUICK hot bouillon may be made by using a teaspoonful of the prepared vegetable paste, dissolved in a cupful of hot water. Any other flavor may be added if desired—a slice of lemon or a bit of onion extract.

Tomato Canape.

Cut bread one-fourth inch thick and make into rounds with a cooky cutter Spread with butter and then with may onnaise; on this put a slice of peeled tomato the same size, spread with mayonnaise, edge the tomato with a ring of chopped chives inside a ring of chopped egg white and the riced yolk to fill the center. Top with a stuffed olive or a sprig of parsley.

Cider Punch.

Beat up a glass of apple jelly to a froth, add a cupful of boiling water and a quart of cider. Flavor with nutmeg. Fill glasses with shaved ice and pour over this the punch.

Oyster Cocktail in Grapefruit Shells

Put two tablespoonfuls of catsup a tablespoonful of chili sauce, a dash o paprika and tabasco into a small glass with one-half dozen oysters for each cocktail. Set into the shell of half a grapefruit, surround with ice on the plate and serve. Horseradish is well liked and may be substituted for the chili sauce.

Almond Paste.

Take half a pound of blanched and ground almonds, the yolks of two eggs, the juice of half a lemon and a few drops of almond flavoring. Mix together well, knead with the hands until smooth and pliable and will mold without splitting. Use as filling for dates or prunes, or made into balls and rolled in chocolate, grated.

MEADOWS OF MEMORY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

ACROSS the meadows of my memory
A collie dog comes running.
The buttercups are growing happily,
The quail are sunning.
A meadow lark is whistling from the fence—
A rail fence sprawling—
And I can hear through thickets green and dense,
The crickets calling.

The butterflies are wheeling in the sun.
The locust trees are sending
Their perfume to a child—a lonely one—
Whose day is ending.
When in the West the banners of the night
Display their beauty,
A little girl will take her bedtime flight—
A tiresome duty.

My room still stands within my memory.
I see each low brown rafter.
Then I remember—though I long to be
Where childish laughter
Made every hour of living a refrain,
Serene and glowing—
The house is tumbled down, and in the lane
The weeds are growing.
